

Regions4PerMed OBJECTIVES

The project Regions4PerMed contributes to the achievement of the objectives of the European Health Innovation Strategy launched in 2011 with the European Council Conclusion: towards modern, responsive and sustainable health systems (2011/C 202/04) devoted to the modernisation of the European Healthcare system.

Regions4PerMed [www.regions4permed.eu] aims at building a policy instrument able to reinforce the inter-regional collaboration and enable the transition from REACTIVE healthcare system (based on episodic and acute care model) to PREVENTIVE (stratifying at-risk individuals and ensure that preventive action is taken to intervene well before the onset of symptoms, let alone illness) and PREDICTIVE (leverage and integrate cutting-edge technologies to not only stratify risk, but even predict risk and intervene even further upstream) systems. This requires important levels of investments in health innovation that is more feasible when regions join forces.

By participating in our interregional committee, the interested stakeholder is willing to contribute to the achievement of the project main objectives:

- Exchange information and views on how personalised medicine is prioritised at regional level;
- Identify needs and possibilities for interregional cooperation and synergies for personalised medicine;
- Identify information gaps and needs for further data collection/analysis;
- Support investment on health innovation and personalised health and medicine.
